

Public Utilities Commission shuts off the spigot

The California Public Utilities Commission has denied the application by California-American Water Co. to extend service to Hidden Hills, and the request and motion of Del Monte Properties Company for changes in the PUC's first interim order of May 30, 1973.

In addition, the PUC forbade the water utility from providing "water to new service connections within its Monterey Peninsula District, other than those in municipally sponsored redevelopment or renewal projects, unless, prior to the effective date of this order, a valid building permit has been issued."

The water company was also ordered to research water conservation programs of other water purveyors and "draft a vigorous and effective water conservation program" submitting that program for the PUC's consideration and approval before Oct. 31, 1975.

Cal-Am was also ordered to implement the Department of Water Resources Seaside Activities 1, 2 and 4 as agreed to by the company during the hearings held during the past year.

The water utility was also told to "draft and submit to the commission, on or before Oct. 31, 1975, a standby plan for water rationing."

Monterey Peninsula officials were still trying to determine last week what the precise effects on their cities the PUC decision would have. Most agreed that one likely effect would be a rush of building permit applications before the end of this month.

Seaside City Mgr. Dudley Lapham said the decision was "much stiffer than the interim order" handed down two years ago. But he added that nothing in the renewal or redevelopment areas of Seaside would be affected.

"Anything that's not in those areas, unless there's a valid building permit issued, can't get water," he said. "This pertains essentially to undeveloped lots. Mostly, the vacant, undeveloped property is affected."

Lapham said there is a "great deal of activity occurring in Seaside in the redevelopment areas," which are not substantially affected by the decision. "But we may get a rash of building permit this month," he said, referring to those developers of housing units in the private sector trying to beat the decision.

The impact of the P.U.C. decision may prove particularly devastating because it comes at a time when there is increased demand for new housing, generated by the placement of the 7th Infantry Division at Fort Ord. It means that all new construction in the Monterey Peninsula area will be halted after June 30.

Monterey City Mgr. John Nail predicted a "dramatic impact on the building industry and related commercial activity," although redevelopment projects in Monterey will be unaffected. He also said a heavy load of building permits had started to come into his office in an effort to beat the June 30 deadline.

While denying the utility's application, which was consolidated for hearing purposes with the commission's investigation into the company's operations, practices, service, equipment, facilities, rules, regulations, contracts and water supply, the PUC expanded the investigation to include California-American's "finances and its relationship to American Water Works Co. insofar as these subjects affect the adequacy of the water supply of the utility's Monterey District."

The commission's investigation was also expanded to include the rate structure of the utility's Monterey District. It directed the PUC's staff of the Finance and Accounts Division and Utilities Division to investigate these topics, and prepare a report for the commission's consideration by June 30, 1976.

The PUC, in addition, ordered California-American to: - File a monthly report on the status of financing and constructing the Begonia iron removal plant and the Canada de la Segunda pipeline project.

- File status reports on its progress in augmenting the intermediate and long-term requirements of its Monterey District.

- Continue its efforts "to improve water quality in the Ord Terrace area of Seaside... (and) file reports as to the quality of the Ord Terrace water and the status of the utility's effort to improve it."

Copies of each report shall also be filed with the Zone 11 Water Advisory Committee and the reports relating to Ord Terrace with the Ord Terrace Water Quality Committee.

In commenting on the confrontation of the PUC's investigation, the decision noted "the Monterey Peninsula water supply problem... involves complex engineering, geological, financial and social issues. In order to maintain a coherent record of our monitoring and supervising this water supply problem, the commission's investigation, Case No. 9530 will continue."

In its current findings, the PUC estimated a reasonable water requirement for the year 1975 is 16,500 acre-feet, with a total supply available to the Monterey District of Cal-Am, annually on a continuing basis, to be 22,000 acre-feet.

"The maximum total amount of water that can be prudently produced by Cal-Am's existing facilities, is 15,500 acre-feet, determined as follows: From the Carmel River, 9,000 acre-feet; from the Carmel Valley aquifer, 4,500

Noise element added to city's plan

The Seaside Planning Commission has adopted a noise element to the general plan as a first step, toward adopting a noise control ordinance.

What's that? Can't hear you! Those jets are awful loud!

I said, the city is working on noise control. The planning commission passed a noise element last week.

Huh? Those motorcycles, and those guns at Fort Ord, and...

Well, it's true. The planning commission did adopt a noise element, but it was practically so quiet in council chambers you could have heard a pin drop. Oh, there was plenty of noise outside, where noise was supposedly not a problem.

But inside, where people were supposed to make noises about the noise situation, only one person rose to address the planning commission. He was Edward Bandarra of 1001 Tweed Place, Seaside, who expressed his concern over rising noise levels on the Peninsula.

Bandarra, speaking for a group of eight property owners in the area in which he lives, between Seaside and Del Rey Oaks, said "the expansion of the airport had led us to believe that the seriousness of things brought up by Mr. Burris (planning director) are all well and good, but that businesses may have the upper hand."

The reference was to Planning Director William Burris' analysis that the two most persistent and yet independent sources of noise are the airport and Fort Ord, both of which represent vital portions of the Peninsula's economy.

"Sometimes, at my house, we can't speak because the noise from airplanes," Bandarra said. "The problem is that the public doesn't get to vote on what the airport does. The next step will be larger aircraft, and then what."

"We're probably going to be in a situation where we can't do much. One of my neighbors has moved out, but that's not the solution."

One of the two major findings of the adopted and revised noise element approved last Wednesday is that "Seaside, at the present time, does not have a major noise problem," but that single-event noise generators do persist.

The other is that "the major source of excessive noise within the city is the result of automobile vehicles of all types." The noise element adopted last week contemplated the later adoption of a noise ordinance as part of the city's general plan.

However, as Burris told the commission, "the noise element is a planning tool; it's not regulatory. It sets a goal for the community."

"We do not have any expertise with noise in the city. The health department has taken noise readings for us in the city, but we have no problem with noise as related to the levels tolerated in other communities," Burris said.

"We should follow this with an ordinance which sets forth the limits of noise we will tolerate in this community," he added.

Burris said the city has received complaints from residents about noise generated by the Monterey Peninsula Airport, and noted that the airport is required in its general plan to show "noise contours" in its present operation and for projected operations.

But the problem with airport noise, so far as other municipalities are concerned, is one of regulation. Burris noted that the airport district is a separate, legally constituted jurisdiction with its own power of taxation and autonomy, not subject to any other local controls, save public opinion.

"The two leading causes of the economic health of the Monterey Peninsula are tourism and the military," Burris said, "yet both could cause noise problems for the city."

Burris read a letter from a Fort Ord official who complained about the use of the term "unwanted noise levels" in the city's noise element, and who suggested that Seaside arrive at some

Planning commission debates whether to allow delicatessen use in city

Is a delicatessen a restaurant or grocery? Or is it neither? And is a delicatessen permitted in Seaside's present zoning laws?

Those were some of the questions that had the Seaside Planning Commission shaking its heads last Wednesday when consideration of a use permit request for Jonathan Concept Ate came before the planners.

The use permit, if approved, would allow owner Elliot Katz to install a delicatessen serving prepared foods and sandwiches on a limited scale as part of his plant store located at 1200 Broadway. The business is known as Jonathan Concept Tu.

The problem, as pointed out by Planning Director William Burris, was that the portion of the original use permit granted by the planning commission for the plant store did not specify that the delicatessen operation would be included.

Another, more substantial stumbling block, was that the city zoning ordinance does not specifically permit a delicatessen operation in the C.N. district. Burris said the present ordinance would permit the retail sales of food, as a grocery-type operation, but not the on-site consumption of the food, since that would be a restaurant, prohibited in that zone.

"There is not a provision in our zoning ordinance for a delicatessen," Burris said. "A 'delicatessen' is defined in the dictionary as a place where foods not prepared on the premises are sold. The ordinance doesn't provide for a restaurant in that area, though."

Katz told the planners that the proposed use would be similar to the Thunderbird Book Store in Carmel Valley, where sandwiches and drinks are sold on a limited scale in what is primarily a book store.

"We're not intending this to be a restaurant," Katz said. "This would just be a place where people can have a sandwich for lunch, and relax with plants."

Linda Lee Bassett remarked that the proposal didn't look as if it would attract people who would come to eat. "They've made such a pleasant place to go out of it," she said. "This is an ideal place to have something like this. I can't see how you could term this a restaurant."

Planning Commissioner Don Likas asked whether any thought had been given to "automated dispensing" of food.

Katz said that would be contrary to the objectives of the place, and said that one purpose is to create a total environment "where people can come and hang around in a pleasant atmosphere."

Mrs. Bassett said "there's no sense in having a delicatessen if you can't eat there," and reminded the planners of other such delicatessens all across America where sandwiches are sold and a few tables are provided for those who want to eat on the premises.

A motion to continue the matter was approved, and then rescinded when Katz asked if he could be permitted to engage in retail food sales of items not to be consumed on the premises, such as health foods. Then the planning commission approved the use permit, with the change of language from "delicatessen" to sale of retail foods.

The planning commission also plans to re-examine the zoning ordinance to see if any amendments can be made, or need to be made in order to permit a delicatessen.

In other business, the planning commission:

-Granted a use permit to allow wholesale and retail distributing of phonograph records in the C-R-S district in a building constructed in the 1920s and in need of major rehabilitation. The address of the proposed operation is 540 Olympia, in the Gateway Redevelopment Project.

-Approved a use permit for the construction of a multiple dwelling consisting of six units in the R-4 district, to Alfeo Antang, at 1008 Trinity. The question of whether to allow open garages in the district was referred to the Board of Architectural Review.

-Approved a use permit to allow carpet retail sales and installation for Seaside Carpet

YWCA summer classes begin next week

Registration is open for summer classes and activities, announces the YWCA of the Monterey Peninsula. Most classes begin the week of June 23.

The list of activities includes the popular ongoing YOGA, Thursdays, 5:30-7:00 p.m. and Bellydancing, June 26-Aug. 14, 7-8 p.m. Female Sexuality is a new offering, as well as one day devoted to Menopause. Sue Polk, current star of Studio Theater Production "Sweet Charity," instructs Tap Dancing June 25 - Aug. 13 at 10:00 a.m.

The third YW's Renewal

Retreat for Women Only is scheduled at Santa Cruz mountains for the weekend of Aug. 1 to 3. This offers women a weekend totally free of job and family responsibilities. Special offer: Available in YW office. Manual for father "Coping Without Mom."

Premiums offered at county fair

A total of $31,518.00 in premiums in 186 classes are offered in the premium book for the 1975 Monterey National Horse Show which is in the mail to horse exhibitors all over the United States.

But George Wise, secretary-manager for the Monterey County Fair and National Horse Show, points out that this premium total only tells part of the story. Last year more than $41,000 was actually paid out, since for some classes the premiums are based on the total of entry fees collected.

And for the Puissance class, which carries a $500 sweepstakes, an extra $100 is offered for a horse clearing 6'6". $150 for 6'9", $200 for 7' and $250 for 7'3".

The expanded horse show—actually a Class A junior show and a Class A open show combined—is scheduled for July 31-Aug. 9 in Patee Arena at the Monterey County Fairgrounds.

Among the new junior classes are both cow working and dry working classes; previously the youngsters did dry work for qualifying rounds and worked cattle for the stake. Programmed in with the junior show are some of the "amateur owner" hunter jumper and Western classes, the reason being, according to Wise, that many of the riders in these classes can only participate on a weekend.

More than 700 horses are expected to be entered in the 10-day show. Premium books can be requested from the Monterey County Fairgrounds, P.O. Box 1151, Monterey.

of programs is the Group for Young Parents. June 24, Tuesdays 3:30 p.m. to 5 p.m., with special focus on young mothers with small children. Emphasis on single parent-hood concerns. Child care is available for children under five years.

For those with older children, six through adolescence, the YW offers Living and Working with Children for parents and volunteers. Child care is available, July 1-July 22, 9:00 noon.

How To Be Your Own Best Friend. Women Talking to Women is unique in that women may join anytime for the joy of sharing; rap and friendship. No registration fee.

Anyone desiring more information and registration for any YW program should contact the YWCA 649-0834, immediately. Pre-registration is required and classes fill early.

Students need summer jobs

(EDITORIAL)

Students and youth of Seaside and the Monterey Peninsula will converge upon the hard economic reality of high unemployment and slow recovery this summer in looking for jobs.

Various agencies--among them the Student Employment Service--are working to secure positions for these young people, but it's no secret that things are difficult, at best.

Many students and youth are looking to hitherto unexpected sources of employment and are gladly accepting housekeeping and tourist-oriented jobs, including waiting on tables and performing related services.

The problem is not that students are unwilling to work, for youth has always been noted for its great energy and high idealism; the difficulty is simply that there are not enough jobs to go around.

Certainly, the needs of household heads who are unemployed and looking for work deserve high priority in filling positions in the community. But the needs of youth, who will themselves be the heads of households in future years and whose earnings may contribute to financially distressed homes, are also important.

Businessmen and community leaders would be well advised to bear the needs of all segments of the community in mind in what promises to be a long and potentially hot summer for everyone. For a small investment of confidence, the student and young person very often repays that investment with enthusiasm and hard work.

Letters to the editor

Dear Editor:

Who of any degree of wisdom does not know how true the old saying is that: "Often power goes to one's head?"

Is it not true on every continent? In the past and at present? Under any and every economic, political and religious outlook? Given a mixed up species, that we are (part of the irrational jungle inheritance and part of the more recent civilized environment), when any of us manage to scramble to leadership in some endeavor is it not easy to grow insolent?

Once again this truth is made clear - as so many times in the past of mankind - by an

AP dispatch just recently. It comes from Malaysia, and states:

"Muhammad Ali arrived in Muslim Malaysia...and declared that with a little help from Allah he'll successfully defend his heavyweight boxing title against Joe Bugner."

"Joe Bugner, with Allah helping me, is just like an ant..." the champion said. "He's a heavyweight champion of all of Europe...but when Allah is with you, nobody can defeat you."

"When I go in the ring, I go with Allah, and when Bugner fights me, he fights Allah. So there's nothing he can say, there's nothing you can say, there's nothing no government, no president can say when I am backed by the Lord of all the world...and all true Muslims will understand what I'm saying."

Humility? - Intelligence? Something worthwhile to offer to help made this sad, old earth "nearer to the heart's desire?" Stop laughing. Don't expect wisdom and truth from a midgen mind with evergrown fists!

Does he - the ring master - strut often in front of his full length mirror and proclaim: "I am Napoleon, Caesar, Alexander the Great!"

In his prayers, does he start out: "Allah, listen to me - your follower of the mighty punch. I pulverize them in thy name. Move over from your gorgeous throne and make room for me. I'll want lots of space when I eventually get to heaven and help you subject the universe. We're partners, aren't we?

"Allah, I have a plan to make of the Cosmos a vast prize ring. You will be my manager. We'll split the proceeds 50-50, O.K."

What a show we witness, as we go through life! Who can help being amused by the dunce antics of some members of our human family?

GEORGE HERMAN

Bill Jackson honored on retirement from Army

M.Sgt. Bill Jackson of Seaside retired from the military service at Fort Ord recently after 22 years of service.

Jackson, who has been working part-time as an associate member of Seamount Realty, Seaside, now assumes a full-time status.

He has been involved with community activities while in the military, and became actively involved in the Citadel Lodge, I.B.P.O.E. of

Bill Jackson

W., where he is presently holding the position of secretary. He is a member of the Seaview Golf Club of Seaside; a member of the Masonic Order of Seaside, and other community organizations.

Jackson served in the European Theater, in Korea, and has served two tours of duty in Vietnam.

His decorations include the Bronze Star, Meritorious Service Medal, the Commendation Medal, Awards, Vietnamese Service and Campaign Medal, the Good Conduct Medal with five clusters, the American Spirit of Honor Medal, National Defense Service Medal, and many more.

Upon returning from Vietnam in 1971, Jackson was responsible for the establishing of a race relations, equal opportunity education program in the Fort Ord community.

Father O'Connor pays a visit here

Rear Admiral John J. O'Connor, Head Chaplain Designate of the Pentagon, paid a whirlwind visit recently to the Naval Postgraduate School.

In 1963-64 Father O'Connor was Catholic chaplain at the school. During that time he was the chief motive power behind founding of the Gateway Center for the Retarded, the first institution of its kind on the Monterey Peninsula.

Admiral O'Connor has just completed an assignment as head chaplain at the Naval Academy at Annapolis, where he designed a course in to moral questions over Vietnam.

A scholar as well as a religious leader, Admiral O'Connor has a Ph.D. in psychology from George Washington University in Washington, D.C.

Lend a hand!

Are you the kind of person who likes to help out in an emergency? Volunteers In Action needs people like you.

The following is a partial list of volunteer jobs available through the Seaside Outreach Office. Drop by at 880 Broadway, Seaside or give them a call - 899-4511.

-- A Benefit Shop in Seaside needs someone to help sort clothing and also be a sales clerk...if you have fun with new and old items, this is the spot for you! Give them a call!!

-- Do you like to work in a friendly office with sunshine and warm faces? Do you want to brush up on a few skills? A receptionist for a local agency is desperately needed. You need not know how to type - just answering the phone and recording messages, and such satisfaction!

-- Are you handy with electrical appliances? Many of our senior citizens need televisions fixed and could use a television repairman; call WIA if you can lend a hand!

-- Do you like to drive and have a car regularly? Many of our local citizens need transportation to doctors, dentists, etc., and would surely appreciate a lift. Or do you like the look of crisp fresh vegetables? Drivers are needed to deliver such produce to our senior citizens. Lend a hand, if you can! Call the outreach office today.

-- The Seaside area is fortunate to have a Performing Arts Group and they need just about any kind of help. If live stage is your field, they would be more than happy to give you a job. Call for more details, 899-4511.

-- Project Buddy, a vital program through VIA and the outreach office is looking for volunteers youth and adults who can give some guidance and friendship to a child of our community. It is a most rewarding experience - call or drop by the office if you could ever be a Big Buddy to one of our Little Buddies.

-- Living room and bedroom furniture is desperately needed for families with a very special need. Call VIA outreach office, they will pick up for you!

Persons interested in these or other volunteer opportunities are asked to call or visit the Seaside Outreach Office at 880 Broadway.

We saved enough on lighting last year to keep our energy costs "in the ball park." Here's how to lighten your energy burden at home.

Ray Ward, Assistant General Manager of the Oakland-Alameda County Coliseum Complex.

Since we have to use enormous amounts of electricity to light night ball games, concerts and other events, rising electric rates threatened to knock our electric bill out of sight.

So to stay within our budget, we cut back on lighting wherever possible. We reduced parking and decorative lighting to a minimum. And we cut one-third of our interior hallway lighting. Altogether, we were able to cut our average monthly electric usage by about a third over the past two years, saving enough last year alone to light 4 night baseball games free.

Here are ways you can save on lighting in your home:

Keep outdoor lighting to a safety minimum. Inside, exchange high-wattage bulbs for lower ones, except where you read or work. Also, you get more illumination by keeping light bulbs and glass lighting fixtures dust-free.

Incidentally, when buying light bulbs, read the package carefully. Lighting power is measured in lumens, not wattage. You'll find that a 100-watt bulb gives you more light--or lumens--than four 25-watt bulbs.

Also, fluorescent lighting gives you more light, more economically--watt for watt--than incandescent lighting.

Fluorescent bulbs can actually last up to 6 times longer.

And if you're decorating, remember that light-colored walls reflect more light than dark ones, making all types of lights more effective.

And don't forget to shut off lights when you're not using them. It's the simplest way to conserve on lighting.

Save energy--you'll save money, too.

AGREEING on the use of the USO Building in Monterey for the first production by S-s-sweet S-s-snake were Micil Murphey, (left) one of the directors and actors in their first play, and George Stevens, Director of the USO.

ABAD HUGHES (left) discusses the forthcoming production of "Cage" which will be the first of the presentations by the theatre workshop of the group, with actor Micil Murphey, prior to final arrangements.

DIRECTORS of S-s-sweet S-s-snake are Jacqueline Takach, the vice-president, and Herbert ("King") Smart, president.

PLANS for the production of "Cage" to be presented the week of July 12 were made by two members of the organization, Aaron Ogado (left) and Lonnie Stewart, director of the theatre workshop.

S-s-sweet S-s-snake takes the venom from social progress

The snake is a symbol which has been a part of human culture since, well, the Garden of Eden.

There's Ireland with its magic snake mythology; there's India with its snake charmers. To be referred to as one of those lowly reptiles isn't exactly a compliment.

And recently, the Symbionese Liberation Army raised eyebrows and blood pressures with its tactics of ultra-violence. Its symbol, appropriately, was a seven-headed cobra.

But a new organization on the Monterey Peninsula has chosen the snake as a symbol for a new kind of social and cultural interchange focused on positive experiences: S-s-sweet S-s-snake Productions. Because the organization is new, the snake symbolism takes on a new meaning; in this case, a positive meaning.

What is an outfit with a wierd name like S-s-sweet S-s-snake Productions doing on the sleepy Monterey Peninsula? Plenty. It seems that Herbert William ("King") Smart, president of the organization, has the notion that many of society's deepest problems are just as real here as in the inner-city ghettos. And he's aiming to do something to improve the situation, in a totally non-violent way.

With headquarters in Pacific Grove, S-s-sweet S-s-snake can best be defined as an inter-disciplinary approach to a myriad of social problems arising from poor communications. These include obvious breakdowns in the social fabric in the form of crime, racism, violence, poverty, and injustices of every sort.

One of the fundamental precepts of the organization is that people who have been through a particular crisis and who have learned to cope, can impart that strenght to others.

This means that former addicts can help people get off drugs and into a positive, productive role in society; it means that former prostitutes can help rehabilitate others away from that kind of life; and it means that the "each one, teach one" philosophy is by far the most productive to these ends.

S-s-sweet S-s-snake is a non-profit corporation. Its vice president is Jacqueline Takach. Smart describes its role as "service and vocational oriented, to better communication between the different levels of society and the community."

Behind that high-flown rhetoric is a lot of hard experience that taught Smart that there are those in society who are both favored and frowned upon; S-s-sweet S-s-snake hopes to educate, motivate, and integrate the latter group into the former, to the betterment of society.

Some of the tools with which the organization hopes to achieve this include a theatre workshop, the creation of movies and audiovisual presentations, a music workshop, a newspaper, a housing project, and work within the organization itself.

To some extent, S-s-sweet S-s-snake is patterned after San Francisco's Delancy Street rehabilitation project, where people of various backgrounds work themselves into vocational skills and, eventually, into productive roles in society. S-s-sweet S-s-snake wants to be self-supporting because that status, Smart believes, is compatible with total rehabilitation.

For example, one way in which S-s-sweet S-s-snake hopes to actualize its ideals is by employing former prisoners to write, direct, produce and stage plays about their prison experiences.

Noise Element

engineering or scientific standard to define "noise."

"We should establish a data collection system," Burris urged. "We need some way to take readings during the year, and to compile them. Then, we start to develop an ordinance, we'll have something to go on."

The recommendation of the planning commission contained within the noise element is that the city draft and adopt a noise ordinance "to prohibit unwanted and unnecessary noise, similar to the Model Noise Ordinance prepared by the League of California Cities."

The contemplated ordinance would concern itself with all sources of noise, including, but not limited to, minibikes, barking dogs, amplified music and construction-related noises.

The plays would be presented through the theatre workshop and funds would come from ticket sales, which would be used to keep the project going.

The prisoners would learn about themselves, and about the skills involved in writing, directing, producing, and acting; the rest of society would learn from witnessing the production, and barriers to communication would be reduced.

"Our objective is to make it so that those who've had to lean on society can be an asset to themselves and to society," Smart said.

Among the people on the board of directors and Dr. Albert Baez of Carmel Valley plus about 100 others who see in S-s-sweet S-s-snake a new avenue that promises new success in dealing with old problems. It's a statewide organization with ties to similar types of groups; frequent trips are made to the Bay Area to learn and to share.

Smart is a native of North Carolina, but he has lived in California for the last 16 years. His background is in the ministry and in teaching. He was a minister with the Church of God in Christ and attended Ambassador College in Pasadena. So far, all the activities of establishing and launching S-s-sweet S-s-snake have been financed out-of-pocket by Smart and a few others.

But there are plans for fund-raising, including concerts, fashion shows, road tours, and requests for initial grant funds to get the operation on a solid financial footing.

There are 26 persons on the Monterey Peninsula now involved with the theatre workshop, and they have plans to produce the prison play "Cage" and others, once the program is underway. Smart hopes to be able to use the facilities of the Del Rey Theatre in Seaside for the productions.

"We don't want to limit it to convicts, but to open it up to anybody with a need," said Ms. Takach. "And if we find that anybody's idea is a rip off, is just cut them off from us," Smart added.

The evolution of S-s-sweet S-s-snake, like most original ideas, was organic; that is, the intellectual paraphernalia was added to the program once the fundamentals had already been tried and proven.

Smart and Takach began using the various methods described by themselves and in their literature on an individual basis to meet the needs of friends. Gradually, as the full potential of the concept became obvious, they began casting about for a means to disseminate their experience.

"We just started to meet the needs of some friends, and then they did the same for others," Ms. Takach explained. "One of the first people we helped was a kid who had been kicked out of his home by his parents."

"He was of age, but unable to take care of himself. He was very naive and he was getting into the dope scene. But he's very much together now, going to school and working. We showed him he could help himself."

Another related problem S-s-sweet S-s-snake has faced because of its unorthodox approach to problems is that it does not fit neatly into any cubbyhole by which funding agencies dispense their grants, awards, and stipends.

"People are so used to looking at problems in one way that they want to see them in that way only," Smart said. "That's why we went into a corporate structure involving all sorts of disciplines."

The genesis of S-s-sweet S-s-snake was accompanied, among other things, with the issuance of a series of "Letters to Humanity" in which Smart and Takach spelled out their goals and objectives. Some were mailed to local media; most were ignored or seen as some kind of threat. One states:

"On what foundation lies your intelligence? Can you not see that all things flow in harmony that are positive, good, righteous, loving?...You have matured greatly in wisdom, the wisdom called intelligence, as a people, but your wisdom in its use leaves much to be desired. Now is the time to grow up in the way in which you use your wisdom, knowledge and understanding. Stop destroying yourself by destroying each other."

One of the projects Smart hopes to be able to implement soon is the Monterey Peninsula Music Workshop, which would train and employ local musicians in both live and recorded performances. The workshop has a projected budget of some $81,000; the only hinderance now is raising funds to get it off the ground.

Another of the objectives of S-s-sweet S-s-snake is to establish a re-entry program for paroles and ex-convicts as an alternative to incarceration, and to cement an understanding between the various portions of the community of the problems of prisoners and how to solve them. Rehabilitation is the key to this component.

Other proposed activities include the establishment of a half-way house for residents and transients on an emergency basis, which would also function as a free medical clinic, and the creation of a printshop, garage, and other commercial ventures designed to develop rehabilitational skills.

"You can't beat Bank of America for convenience. There's almost always one close by."

Richard Hodge

R. Foppé Hodge, Marina del Rey

When it comes to banking, Richard Hodge is like a lot of Californians. He wants a bank that can meet all his needs. And he wants a bank that's convenient. At Bank of America, he has both.

That's because Bank of America offers over a hundred different banking services. From checking and savings accounts to special trust accounts, safe deposit boxes, BankAmericard®, drive-up banking, Bank America Travelers Cheques, and more.

Of course, at Bank of America you also get the safety of having your accounts insured up to $40,000 by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation. And you get convenience.

In fact, with more than a thousand offices in California to serve you, Bank of America may just be the most convenient bank you'll ever find.

Just ask Richard Hodge. He thinks we're unbeatable.

Depend on us. More Californians do.

Maurya Mann marries Billy Harris

Maurya Mann and Billy Harris were united in marriage on June 14 in a strictly formal candlelight wedding ceremony. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice W. Mann of Seaside and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Purrr Harris of Seaside.

The wedding was held at the Main Post Chapel, Fort Ord, with Rev. Richard Nance, Jr. officiating. The bride wore a white A-line empire gown of Quiana knit with a white lace beaded fitted mandarin type jacket with fitted sleeves. The gown was accented with an oval shaped chapel train of heavy appliqued embroidered imported Venezia lace.

Her head and handpiece were made of bead pearls that were imported from Mexico. Mrs. Paula Baymon of Berkeley, Matron of Honor, wore a pastel gown complimenting all the pastel colors of the bridesmaids. The floral headpieces and bouquets of the Matron of Honor and bridesmaids were of pastel carnations and baby's breath.

Bridesmaids Miss Barbara Holman, cousin of the bride from Chicago, Jeannette Rhea, San Jose, Ella Peterson, San Jose, Harriette Abrahms, Berkeley, Celestine Barnes, Seaside, wore empire fashioned pastel evening gowns. Best Man was Dennis Welch of Seaside. Groomsmen Maurice Mann, brother of the bride, Los Angeles, and Terry Mann, brother of the bride, San Jose. Rodney Baymon, Berkeley, and Eddie Washington and Jack Barnes of Seaside.

The reception was held following the wedding at Fort Ord's Officer's Club, Fergusson Hall. Out of town guests attending the wedding included the bride's grandmother, Mrs. Martha Bohannon of Kansas City, Kans., cousins Mr. and Mrs. Donald Smith, Kansas City, aunts Mrs. Norma Holman, Chicago, and Mrs. Carolyn Mann, San Antonio, Tex. The bride is a graduate of Monterey High School and Healds Business College, San Jose, and is a junior at San Jose University.

Maurya Mann

School and attended San Jose University. He is employed with Firestone in Salinas. After a honeymoon trip to Mexico and Disneyland, the couple will reside in San Jose.

Ballet Montmartre to perform in Carmel

The Ballet Montmartre, a non-profit corporation preserving the teachings of traditional Russian ballet known as Imperial Russian Ballet, will give a presentation at 8 p.m. Saturday, June 28, in Sunset Cultural Center in Carmel.

The Ballet Montmartre was originated to preserve the original training method taught and preserved by Vestres, Bournonville and Johannsen. This method was taught in Russia prior to the revolution in 1917 and is not to be confused with the present-day ballet method taught in Soviet Russia known as the Vaganova School.

A ballet company has been formed under the auspices of the corporation, not for competition with other ballet companies, but for the dual purpose of giving experience to studied ballet artists and acquainting the public with the true art of Imperial Russian Ballet. Each member of the company is a trained soloist in her own right.

The art of ballet, when taught with the correct method, is a particular, specific, definitive training accomplishment of proper technique; and thus the body is enhanced and cultivated rather than inflicted with the physically damaging effects of improper training.

Therefore, there can be no multiple methods of interpretive, personal ballet acceptable for the training of the human body, as anything other than the pure-studied art itself is a harmful conglomeration of imitative styles. Imperial Russian Ballet is not a style. It is the authentic, knowledgeable training method of the art of ballet.

This cultural demonstration is the touring debut for this ballet company which has its home in Newport Beach, where it has already successfully produced a cultural demonstration series for the surrounding community since its creation in 1972.

Due to the fact that The Ballet Montmartre is an educational as well as performing entity, such programs as The Russian Institute at the University of California at Irvine, the Children's Concert Series of the Orange County School District, and the Dance Departments of Orange Coast College, Lakewood High School, and Brigham Young University, Utah, have requested The Ballet Montmartre to give informative and artistic Lecture-Demonstrations of Imperial Russian Ballet.

Featured artists, trained in the Imperial Russian Ballet, are: Patrice DeGraff, who is, also a qualified, dedicated, assistant in the training, Daria Bearden, Diane Gillmore, Kathy Gillmore, Emily Blair, Rosanne Schneider, and her sister

Paula Schneider, who has recently returned to her training from Brigham Young University in Utah where she will promote the art in the dance department, Katherine Bushard, Patsy Burnes, Robin Pelzer, Stacey Holland, Christine Barnett, Kelly Asche, Kristen Mills, Donna Wilson, and Richard Kopcho. The staff of the company includes: Paula Baker, dancer and assistant; Donna Wilson, dancer and wardrobe mistress; Mary Clumeck, sound assistant and Treasurer; and ushers Maria Taggart, Marquita Taggart, and Constance Krimian.

The artistic-technical director and choreographer is Irene Mari, a graduate of the master teachers: Theodore Kosloff, himself a graduate of the Bolshoi, and his wife, the famous Alexandra Baldina, a graduate of the Maryinsky. From this pure heritage, Mme. Irene Mari received all of her training, prior to the subsequent modifications of the art. The original training method as intended by Vestres, Bournonville, and Johannsen - Johannsen being the teacher of both Kosloff and Baldina - is being handed down to the present by the steadfast efforts of Mme. Irene Mari.

ASTRO-FUN-LOGY

June 18-25

EXUBERANT ARIES March 21-April 20: Opportunities for personal advancement are in the making...suggest you watch the tendency to "throw yourself" into your project. Action, too often, without wisdom could tip the scale of balance. People might call you "pushy"...ain't so, or is it?

DETERMINED TAURUS April 21-May 21: Burdens arising out of disappointment will not always be heavy...they will fall into their places and lift the heaviness with inner peace and joy. Off their pressures can just be stepping stones to higher personal freedom through understanding. Activities, in the home base, will be rewarding and OH SO BUSY.

VERSATILE GEMINI May 22-June 21: Children may be giving more for you to be concerned about than you might wish to admit...try to gain their confidence and help by counseling, not scolding. Romance will be beckoning to you...interested?

EXOTIC MOON CHILD June 22-July 23: Future financial opportunities will be crossing your path the next month...check it out fully before accepting as all angles MUST be checked. Other women in the home could cause sudden uneasiness on your part...consider the source and know your position IS SECURE.

REGAL LEO July 24-Aug. 23: Your philosophical theories about life will be on the "chopping block" for others will be watching to see if you really do what you say...Only you know the truth. Short, quick trips will help relieve tension and give you and your loved ones a closer feeling of Unity.

DISCRIMINATING VIRGO Aug. 24-Sept. 23: All that is being told to you is NOT quite true...someone in your environment appears to have an axe to grind; watch out it's not your head or heart. Try not to be in such a hurry that you neglect to watch your footing...endeavor to become a little more aware of yourself and your wants as others are doing a good job for themselves at your expense.

ELEGANT LIBRA Sept. 24 - Oct. 23: Many of the pressures in life are brought about by yourself and your lack of planning which, in the long run, would eliminate them. Your adversaries will be raising oppositions but you'll have the ability to see right thru them eliminating their element of a surprise attack on your position.

SENSUAL SCORPIO Oct. 24-Nov. 22: Emotional tendencies are not your "cup of tea". Deep thinking and the unraveling of problems allow you the perspective needed to stay cool and on top of the situation. Check all contracts pertaining to financial obligations, before signing, as you could "tie yourself up" for a long period to come due to an incomplete investigation.

EXPANSIVE SAGITARIUS Nov. 23-Dec. 21: Thinking, scheming and planning are uppermost in your mind for the proper approach to the future. Friends may accuse you of being singleminded but they are only trying to steer you back on the course of their prior relationship before you began this pensiveness...thinking won't hurt anybody - least of all you!

ZEALOUS CAPRICORN Dec. 22 - Jan 20: Career pressures are beginning to subside. Past experiences were necessary to allow you the teaching experience you needed to profit from in this area! Partners, marriage as well as business are beginning to see things your way...even if they don't share it. Watch tendencies, in the home, to overwork; painting, gardening or whatever...it looks beautiful but you may be too tired to enjoy it fully.

EXTRAORDINARY AQUARIUS Jan 21-Feb. 19: Short vacation trips you are planning or that others from a distance are planning to see you WILL be costing more money than you've planned...so be frugal. You will be offered the opportunity to help a group doing good for those in the community - if it can be "sandwiched in" fine...otherwise you don't need one more thing to do.

MYSTERIOUS PISCES Feb. 20-March 20: Financial opportunities are presenting themselves for your inspection...look at all sides of the picture before you commit yourself...too often the hidden side of things are important from the surprise angle. Thinking about the home is only natural; anything decided, with reason and common sense, is worth doing.

Ethnic scholarships awarded to Seaside students at MPC

Three ethnic minority students from Seaside at Monterey Peninsula College, were named last week as recipients of the annual Ethnic Studies Division scholarship totaling $450.

The scholarship was presented June 11 During MPC's graduation exercises. Last year's winner, Diane M. Brown of Monterey, was a single recipient of the scholarship award.

Barbara A. Tucker of 1684 Granada St., Seaside, the first of the trio to win the award, is a foreign language major and she plans to continue her education this fall at Chapman College at Fort Ord.

Jerry Williams of 9 Mauritania Court, Seaside, is the second recipient. He plans to continue his schooling in aeronautics at San Jose State College in September.

The third winner is Virginia R. Mitchell of 1113 Sonoma Ave., Seaside. She is a business major and plans to attend San Jose State College in the fall, also.

The three Seaside students achieved academic excellence in ethnic studies as well as in their major fields of study during their two-year tenure at MPC. All were supporters of the college's first Ethnic Awareness Day in April, wherein the funds for the scholarships were raised.

The ethnic scholarship has been designated as an annual award to assist needy ethnic minorities at MPC to continue their education.

The Jonathan Concept combines plans and people for beauty

People plus plants equals beauty.

That is the essence of "The Jonathan Concept" which has become manifested in Seaside in recent weeks in the form of combination plant store, arts and crafts gallery, and, if all goes well, a delicatessen.

Jonathan Concept Tu is located at 1220 Broadway in a large quonset-type building which had been vacant for three years before Elliot Katz and Bob Danzer decided to locate their new enterprise there.

It's not like anything else in Seaside, or, for that matter, anything else on the Monterey Peninsula. As Katz pointed out, the concept is somewhat similar to that of the Thunderbird Book Store in Carmel Valley, where bibliophiles may eat a sandwich while browsing through stacks of books.

In Jonathan Concept Tu, the idea is to create a total environment where plants and people may co-exist in harmony and in relaxation; where the delicatessen will dispense food for those who come to see and buy plants.

The primary focus of the operation is plants; the food and arts and crafts are secondary and are, there to enhance the total atmosphere, Danzer explained. However, Jonathan Concept Tu faces a hurdle from the city planning commission before the full concept can be actualized.

There is no provision in the city's zoning ordinance for a "delicatessen" as contemplated by Katz and Danzer. There is a distinct category for retail grocery stores permitted in the district in which Jonathan Concept Tu is located; but there is no provision for restaurants. The question planners must decide is whether a delicatessen is a restaurant, and, if it isn't, whether city zoning laws should be amended to permit it.

Meanwhile, the work of refurbishing and decorating the inside of Jonathan Concept Tu continues. The place has a pleasant, woody feel to it. Soft classical music wafts through the dense, hanging plant life, and the walls are covered with unusual paintings by California artists.

The name and the evolution of Jonathan Concept Tu were explained by Danzer:

"Jonathan was the name of a Seagull that Elliot Katz found on the beach," he explained. "He used to ride in the car with him and sit on the dashboard, at about the same time he conceived the idea that people plus plants equal beauty."

Katz is a veterinarian from New York City who sold his vet hospital about five years ago and moved to California. He built his own home in Big Sur, about two miles south of the Esalen Institute, and soon found himself anxious to do more; he had grown weary of the life of a retiree.

Katz started buying plants out of Watsonville and selling them in others' retail stores, but the high overhead soon made that unfeasible, so he began looking for a place where he could sell them directly.

Jonathan Concept One was the stage where plants were being sold through other retail stores, Danzer explained.

Carmel was ruled out as a potential location because of a lack of space and because of the crowded conditions. "Seaside has a lot of potential," Danzer said; so the decision was made to locate here.

"We're trying to create an environment where people can come and spend the day if they like, seeing arts and crafts, being with plants and books, having a sandwich. There's no hard sell involved. Our main thing is plants; the arts and crafts are seconddary."

Danzer is a jeweler who got involved with Jonathan Concept Tu several months ago when Katz was rounding up artisans and craftsmen for participation. Other related businesses which are also being opened in Seaside include Jonathan Concept Tree, a lumber milling operation which will dispense odd-shaped chunks of wood for those who want to make their own furniture, plus projected restaurants, grocery stores, and a car dealership.

Another individual involved with Jonathan Concept Tu is "Golfer" Albitz of Big Sur, another jeweler who will run the delicatessen once it is installed, and oversee the plants.

Scrimshaw art on display in Jonathan Concept is by artists Robert Nash, William Thompson, John Horler and Jose Guerrero. Jewelry is by Richard Horan, Goph Albitz and Robert Danzer. Ceramic Art is by Giorgos Nikolaou.

GAS WATCHER QUIZ

Has the increase in the cost of foreign oil had an adverse effect on the economy of the USA?

Yes. In 1974 we had a trade deficit of more than $5-billion compared to a $5-million surplus a year earlier. That's money lost to other nations instead of being circulated here to overcome unemployment, inflation, and recession.

LANGUAGE REQUIREMENTS

If you're traveling to England, bear in mind that the mother tongue seems to have become somewhat tangled in the transportation. Here are a few differences you should be aware of, old chap:

1. Going Up. An elevator is a lift and you need it to get to the first floor since the first floor is known as the ground floor, and the second floor is called the first floor and so on.

2. Staying Up. Suspenders are braces and garters are suspenders.

3. Sitting Down. In the theatre, orchestra seats are called stalls.

4. Being Down. What's called an underground (or tube) is really a subway; what's called a subway is really an underground passage (or underground tube).

5. Going On. Car trunks, and sometimes people's shoes, are referred to as boots. Car hoods are bonnets and cars run on petrol, not gas.

6. Staying In. In England, as in America and all over the world, the words for a great comfortable, reasonably priced motor hotel are Holiday Inn where the traveler is assured of American style courtesy, comfort, and convenience mixed with the charm of the country he's in.

It's a place that's really "cheery."

acre-foot; and from the Seaside aquifers, 2,000 acre-feet," the PUC held.

It also found that "the concept of conjunctive operation of surface and underground supplies is not feasible for the Seaside aquifers." The PUC said "there is no prospect, for the foreseeable future, of developing a sufficient supply of water to accommodate the hidden Hills area for which a certificate of public convenience and necessity is sought."

The commission further concluded that there is an "insufficient supply of water to justify the granting of the request of Del Monte that Cal-Am be authorized to extend water service to the Deer Flats and Old Capitol Tracts."

The water supply is such that there is no justification for rescinding or liberalizing our interim order of May 30, 1973, the PUC decision said.

"The presently existing water supplies of Cal-Am's Monterey District are inadequate to meet the normal continuing growth within its service area.

"Cal-Am's Monterey District has reached the limit of its capacity to supply water and, except as provided in the order that follows, no further consumers can be supplied from the system of such utility without injuriously withdrawing the supply wholly or in part from those who have heretofore been supplied by the corporation," the PUC concluded.

Army celebrates birthday party with dinner-dance at Fort Ord

The climax of Ft. Ord's celebration of the U.S. Army's 200th birthday was the Annual Association of the United States Army dinner-dance at Stilwell Hall last Saturday evening.

Col. Allen Griffin, a former publisher of the Monterey Herald and a charter member of the Joseph "Vinegar Joe" Stilwell chapter of the AUSA, was the guest speaker.

At the head table in addition to the speaker was Congressman Burt L. Talcott of the 16th District and three AUSA honorees: The Distinguished Citizen of the Year, The Active Duty Soldier of the Year, and the Reservist of the Year.

Brig. Gen. (Ret) George D. "Doug" Wahl was selected by the group as the Distinguished Citizen partly in honor of his many years of loyalty to and his faithful promotion of all military activities. General Wahl is especially interested in helping young men secure entrance to the U.S. Military Academy at West Point, N.Y. The Soldier of the Year for the first time since the award was inaugurated was presented to a woman soldier. Spec. 5 Linda J. Shockley of the 629 Medical Company, Readiness Group, a soldier who has shown leadership characteristics since joining the Army in 1971. Her future plans call for her to make the Army her career and she has high hopes of securing a direct commission.

The Reservist of the Year is Sergeant Alex Montoy, a member of the 820th Engineer Battalion, whose cheerful participation in weekend activities earned him and his unit many friends in the local communities where the organization refurbished playgrounds and cleaned up vacant lots.

BSU holds conference locally

Monterey Peninsula College's Black Student Union recently served as host to the First State Conference of California Community College Black Student Union Groups at the Holiday Inn.

Mel Mason, MPC's BSU co-advisor, and Frank Sherman, president of MPC's BSU, said the purpose of the conference was to unite all of the BSU groups in the state into an organized state-wide body and to establish a political power-base for black students within the state community college system.

More than 220 delegates representing 65 California Community Colleges, attended the conference. Bill Love, member of the National Council on Black Americans and administrator to the College of Alameda, delivered the keynote address.

Love's topic was "The Positive Involvement of Black Students within the Educational System." Love stated a belief that "black students must obtain the tools necessary to determine their own destiny."

Mason said that a new organization, the California Black Student Congress, was created by the participants at the conference.

Both Mason and Sherman felt the conference, hopefully the first of many, was successful. Mason added, "I think the State of California and probably the entire nation, will soon feel the effects of what occurred here in Monterey at this conference."

Exercise, movement offered

Kay Russo, recreation supervisor for the City of Monterey Park and Recreation Department, announces that the department is offering an exercise and jazz dance movement class for adults.

Emphasis will be on the development of basic dance movements and contemporary rhythms as well as body control and exercise. The fundamental styles of modern and jazz dance will be covered.

The class will be held at the Monterey Youth Center, on Pearl Street, next to Dennis The Menace Park, on Tuesdays from 7:30 p.m. to 9 p.m. This will be a six week course beginning Tuesday, June 17, and continuing through to July 22.

Dance class instructor, Debbie Reynolds, stated that the class will be limited to 30 participants and participants should come to class wearing leotards and tights or loose fitting clothes.

Registration is $15 for Monterey residents and $18 for non-residents. Registration will be taken at the Department office, 546 Dutra, or directly at the first class meeting at the Youth Center on Tuesday, June 17. For further information, please phone the Department, 372-8121, ext. 281.

Classic film to be screened

The 1946 film classic "Henry V," starring Sir Laurence Olivier, will be the first film featured in Monterey Peninsula College's Film Gallery of "Summer Classics" at 8 p.m. Friday, June 20 in the MPC Music Hall.

"Henry V" was based on the screenplay by Olivier, which in turn was originally based on the Shakespearean play. The color film received an Academy Award nomination and Olivier won a nomination for best actor in the film.

The film has been described as a "super spectacular" which is a "far better motion picture than it ever was a play." Admission $1.
